100 CHILDREN'S ART

An original work of art created by the children of the Frankie Lemmon School especially for this year's TWFE. Acrylic paint pouring is a process by which several different acrylic colors and other art mediums are mixed, layered, poured and are gently rotated on an art board so that the paints spread over the entire work of art. Different techniques are used to achieve various looks. No two pieces are exactly alike.

The Frankie Lemmon School children helped mix, layer, pour and rotate the art boards to create these finished pieces.
